were safely in Rhinelander's possession.

The moment the fight was decided, Storm, with Helen, went back to the engine to get their personal prisoner, the redoubtable Spike. They took him back to where the Sheriff was giving his orders for the disposition of those under arrest. Helen explained to the Sheriff very forcibly just what Spike had done.

"Well," demanded the official jocularly, "what'll we do with him? String him up right here in a box car?"

"No," exclaimed Helen, indignantly, "You can do better than that." She pointed to Seagrue, now also under arrest. "Put those two men at work unloading these ties for our camp. They are the ringleaders in the whole affair. If they had their deserts they would both be in the penitentiary. Make them work, Sheriff. That's the last thing that pair want to do." Rhinelander came up with his men as she finished.

"You're right," declared the Sheriff, good humored over the outcome.

by force of numbers. Helen, however, was not without reserves.

"Give them the live steam, George, and a lot of it, quick," she cried.

"Don't let them capture us."

Storm needed no more than the hint. Turning on the valve he let loose a hot cloud that drovs Seagrue and his gang gasping from the engine. The foremost of the men caught in the white fog were glad to get away unhurt, and halting at a safe distance rallied for orders.

Delausy, whose fighting blood was just getting warmed up, saw a further chance and called to his men to follow him around the cut. The gang divided and Delaney's part of it, starting over the hill, met Rhinelander's men. For a time there was a hot mix-up. As the enemy came on in ever increasing numbers, Wood and his men were soon getting the worst of it, but fresh shouts were heard down the hill, and at the moment the Sheriff's posse—now arrived—running in, took the side of Rhinelander's men and helped them heat Seagrue's gang back.

"Suppose they refuse to work," suggested a deputy.

"Refuse?" echoed the Sheriff, savagely. "If they do, find a pump that will work and give 'em the cold water,"

But Seagrue and Spike did work.

Pullman Had Only Four Pennies When He Leaped From

The police continued their search to-day for the $4,000 or more Nathan Pullman is known to have had a few hours before he murdered his wife, Rebecca, and his daughter, Mrs. Ger trude Bazell, at No. 744 Dawson Street with an axe. Pullman, after reading an account of the tragecy in yesterday's papers, jumped from a reading an account of the tragecy in yesterday's papers, jumped from a fourth-story window of the Grand Central Hotel, Third Avenue and Forty-third Street, and killed himself. Only four cents were found in his

The young woman with whom he is reported to have been seen frequently is being sought on the theory she may know something of the money, but the detectives have been unable to learn her identity. He registered at the hotel as "Jones and wife," and said the woman would be in later, but if she came no one saw her. The eight letters Pullman left indicate he was demented and hated his wife and daughter. The police believe he intended also to kill his "affinity," but she failed to show up.

Slayer Confesses, Police Say. Arrested early to-day by Brooklyn de-tectives on a charge of homicide, Paul Mioeiii of No. 18 Tiffany Place admitted, the police say, that he shot and killed Cirino Mazzese in Brooklyn on Sept. 21, 1913. Micelli, who returned from Omaha eight days ago, claims he fired when he believed his opponent was about to draw a revolver.
